

Scholarship winners

Lampasas High School seniors Crystal Elder and Chris Poston are the recipients of a $500 and $1,000 scholarship, respectively, given by Capital Ambulance. The seniors are students in the health science class of Kimberly Kuklies, right, and both plan to continue their studies in related fields. Miss Elder, who will attend Texas A&M, will study in the health science field, and Poston, who plans to attend Blinn College, will go into the firefighting and paramedic program. Rhonda Cockrell, public relations representative/paramedic for Capital Ambulance, made the scholarship presentations.

Dr. Maxwell Scarlett
Physician to speak at graduation

An accomplished alumni will be one of the speakers at commencement exercises for the College of Science on Monday at the University of Texas at Arlington. Dr. Maxwell C. Scarlett, the first African-American graduate of Arlington State College in 1966, will give the alumni welcome at 3 p.m. in Texas Hall.

The Fort Worth native earned a bachelor's degree in biology and his medical degree in 1971 from Howard University College of Medicine in Washington, D.C.

He is an emergency physician at Rollins Brook Community Hospital in Lampasas.

Scarlett is president and chief executive officer of Lekar Emergency Medical Associates in Killeen.

He and his wife, Vivian, recently established the biology department's first endowed professorship.

Steer validation

The 2010 steer validation for Lampasas County is June 19 at 4 p.m. at the Mike Atkinson ranch.

All prospective steer exhibitors who plan to enter major stock shows in 2010 must have a state validation tag, hair samples and nose prints submitted to the State Steer Validation Office.

Make checks payable for $8 for steer tags to LCYLA.

J.P. Buice of Waco entered his kerosene-powered 1919 Rumly Oil Pull into the Adamsville Tractor Show.

Noah Hartley, tractor show chairman, entered his 1945 Farmall "H" tractor, which he completely rebuilt and restored.

Tractor show raises funds for camp

The second annual Tractor Show of Adamsville was chaired by Noah Hartley, who entered his 1945 Farmall "H" tractor, which he rebuilt and restored.

Dennis Herbst served as cook, and desserts were donated by members of the Adamsville community.

The annual event is sponsored by Adamsville Baptist Church, and youth directors Linda Porter and Jeff Brown helped stage the show as a fund-raiser to enable youths to attend camp during the summer.

Musicians Darrell Jones, Wayne Brown and Calvin Clary offered a special program, and church youth managed the kitchen.

A brief parade down FM 581 concluded the fest.

Classics to cruise to Briggs

A group of Classics at the Classic will cruise to Briggs Saturday for the community's free car show, led by Ken Bernhard. Plan to leave from Storm's Drive-In at 9:30 a.m.

Anyone is welcome to cruise with the group. For information, phone Sharon Carrigan at 556-5265 or 734-5180, or Bernhard at 932-2298.

Elmer Kelton toast planned

"A Toast to Elmer Kelton" will be Thursday from 6:30-8:30 p.m. at Fort Concho Commissary in San Angelo.

There will be dinner, music and entertainment. Tickets are $25 each at Cactus Book Shop, San Angelo Chamber of Commerce, Fort Concho Visitor's Center, San Angelo Area Foundation and Tom Green County Library or by phoning (325) 655-4136.

Kelton has won three Western Heritage Awards and was voted "Best Western Writer of All Time" by his peers in Western Writers of America. He also has won seven Spur Awards.

Kelton will give a presentation, followed by an unveiling of a bronze statue of his likeness.
