

Conaway visits in Lampasas

coffins at our feet. "I was thinking that just the day before, they got up in the morning to have breakfast. They had dreams and aspirations. They were loved by their families, and they put on their uniforms, and they got shot.

"One of their own colleagues shot them because they wore a uniform that showed they loved their country. That image will be forever burned into my memory."

Conaway encouraged everyone to say a prayer for those who lost their lives at Fort Hood. "Say a prayer for them and their families and for the Fort Hood community."

He then responded to a query about how to increase the number of health-care professionals.

"The job has to be made as attractive as possible, and new funds need to go toward medical education. I see a shortage of doctors in the future because they can't keep up with the aging population."

Asked if he remains against term limits, Conaway said he does. "I am on a quest to force the Department of Defense and the intelligence community to audit their financial systems, and I have to be there every step of the way to see that gets done. Then they know I'm coming back. As long as the voters give me a good rating and continue to vote for me, I will run." Conaway said he faces two primary opponents: one from Marble Falls and one from San Angelo. He vowed to participate in upcoming forums as long as his schedule allows. The congressman thanked those in attendance for their interest. "Decisions are made by those who show up, and your coming here lets me know what's important to you."
